

Editorial

After fifteen consecutive issues of publishing in Farsi, the Journal of Modern Thoughts in Education (JMTE) has published a special issue in English. This issue, like the preceding ones, generally aims at disseminating the results of academic research projects for the scholars, researchers, and students, exploring the new horizons in the field of education, boosting the sense of cooperation and curiosity among researchers in pursuing their research projects, and offering the scientific solutions for the betterment of the education. This special issue in English particularly aims at focusing on the field of English language teaching and its concerns, familiarizing Iranian scholars, especially younger researchers with reading and writing papers in English, and encouraging them to make contributions to the renowned international journals in English.

It is hoped that the journal's initiative to publish special English issues has been and will be able to renew the vim and vigor among researchers to write and submit their papers in English. JMTE welcomes all your papers related to the fields of education in English for the coming special issues in English.

Seifollah Bahari, PhD
Editor-in-Chief