

miR-31 and miR-145 as Potential Non-Invasive Regulatory Biomarkers in Patients with Endometriosis

Oranous Bashti, Ph.D.¹, Mehrdad Noruzinia, M.D., Ph.D.^{1*}, Masoud Garshasbi, Ph.D.¹, Morteza Abtahi, M.D.²

1. Department of Medical Genetics, Faculty of Medical Sciences, Tarbiat Modares University, Tehran, Iran
2. Dena Hospital, Shiraz, Iran

*Corresponding Address: P.O. BOX: 14115-335, Department of Medical Genetics, Faculty of Medical Sciences, Tarbiat Modares University, Tehran, Iran
Email: noruzinia@modares.ac.ir

Citation: Bashti O, Noruzinia M, Garshasbi M, Abtahi M. Correction: miR-31 and miR-145 as potential non-invasive regulatory biomarkers in patients with endometriosis. Cell J. 2018; 20(2): 293. doi: 10.22074/cellj.2018.5850.

This article published in Cell J (Yakhteh), Vol 20, No 1, Apr-Jun 2018, on pages 84-89, the labels of columns in "Figure 3B" was changed. The correct one is presented below.

