

The importance of documenting in Emergency

*Mohammad Nikzadian¹, Azam khalighi², Maryam Hosseinzadeh³, Zahra mehri⁴

Background: Emergency health care is one of the most important concerns, the duty to provide immediate medical care to reduce mortality and morbidity in patients is undertaken. In the meantime, the medical records of a valuable tool in providing quality patient care, disease prevention and health promotion and health. A case of study, research, scientific and statistical information exactly "depends on the quality of the contents of the file that is recorded by the documentary. Medical record documentation is a critical need legal, professional and most important function for all medical staff, especially nurses. Collect and manage data and transforming it into useful information for documenting the basis for a successful program is improve quality.them. Today, electronic clinical documentation procedures, is systematically being created. The Electronic Health Record (EHR) is called. To achieve this, compliance standards for data registration and reporting requirements to appear. However, it should be noted that patients to continue treatment processes or procedures or solve your financial, legal documentation related to their problem. This implies that the importance of the issue.

Key word: Documentation, report writing, emergency

